

Carola Antigone

My sister Ismene said that my ideas were dangerous, that I was not obedient enough, that you are probably better off really not having ideas, sleeping...

That's true. Maybe I'm doing it my way, but above all I feel that there is a connection between my head and my heart and I find that this is essential to understand the strange word of the laws, to unmask them.

There are laws that men make - small men like Creon - for other small men who don't know how to behave and need someone to decide for them and - very often - against them.

And then there are the unwritten Laws, the eternal ones, that no one knows when they appeared, that I haven't mastered, but learnt from the behaviors of those I love. Are the ones I carry carved in my heart. Are the Laws of Love that bless and do honor.
